THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1878.

THE considerable start of fifty-one hours obtained by the Glennagles over the most formidable of her competitors in this year's tea race almost makes the chance of the former vessel arriving first at London a certainty. In these days of quick steam passages fifty-one hours is equivalent to probably about seven hundred knots, and, supposing the Loudoun Castle to be capable of travelling through the water one knot per hour faster than the Glennagles, it would take her nearly a month to overtake her competitor. It will, however, be none the less interesting to note which vessel actually does make the quickest passage home. At Hankow the Glennagles appears to have been first favourite, but this was no doubt in a great measure owing to her agents having bought largely and thus facilitated her departure. One of the best tests of confidence in a vessel at Hankow, is afforded by the steamer lottery, which this year took place on the 18th instant, three days before the departure of the Glennagles, and when of course it was pretty certain she would be the first away. From $1,000 (Glennagles) and $640 (Loudoun Castle) the prices ran down to ten cents, which some speculative Hankowite invested on the Serpentine. Altogether ten steamers were, at the despatch of the latest advice, waiting at Hankow for tea—a pretty large fleet for what has so far proved this year a small market. The total arrivals of Hankow teas up to the 20th instant were not one half of those up to the same date last year, although the market opened earlier this season than last, while the settlements also showed an even larger decrease. Large settlements had however taken place in Kinkiang teas, the quality of which is said to exhibit a considerable improvement.

THE case at the Police Court on Wednesday last, in which a resident was charged with assaulting his cook, is illustrative of one of the gravest faults of Chinese servants—their unscrupulousness. We often fancy that Chinese servants find positive enjoyment in getting Europeans through their proverbial bushels of dirt (and a few extra ones) so long as they can do so without the slightest risk to themselves. Gratias un Chinois et vous trouverez un sauvage, is perhaps equally as true as Napoleon's famous remark, Gratias un Russe et vous trouverez un Tartar. The "Heathen Chinese" who, to save himself the least bit of trouble, is pleased to make his master's tea from the substantial looking liquid one is accustomed to find in his bath here after a heavy fall of rain, deserves something more than a vigorous application of shoe leather in the region where, if he were not a pagan, he would be parading a pair of coat-tails. In a general way, any resident who is desirous of practising the Bantam system, will be able to do so expeditiously and inexpensively by a few sudden and unexpected descents upon his kitchen just before the dinner hour. The heathenish practices and surroundings of most of our kitchens are, however, in some measure the fault of those Europeans who permit Chinese contractors to build such marvellous holes as exist in this Colony for the accommodation of the cuisine. The fine of a dollar inflicted on the resident who ventured a few days ago to remonstrate in such a practical manner against his cook's dirty propensities was obviously only a nominal one, necessitated by the circumstances. "Vengeance is mine," saith the law, and the man who, at the impulse of a moment deprives the law of this privilege, must it seems, be punished for the law's sake. The old days when an offending cook would be corrected, perhaps with a leg of mutton he had spoiled, or the convulsive application of the right boot to that portion of the human body on which our Colonial Surgeon insists the Oriental should be flogged, are gone. "John" is now quite able to appreciate the protective powers of British law, and chastisements, which the Chinese servitor across the water would receive with complacent resignation, here become matters for judicial investigation. We do not complain, but it is rather unfortunate that while the "Celestial" is so ready to turn to account the privileges of the law, he is, at the same time, so oblivious to its restrictions. How severely, for example, will that meek-looking son of Han cry his wares in parts of the town where hawking is prohibited by ordinance. Of course the unsophis-ticated child of nature knows nothing of ordinances and regulations. Doesn't he, though? Throw a bucket of water over him and see!

Wz understand that a miniature tidal wave was experienced this morning about 11 o'clock, at West Point, during the thunder-storm. The water rushed in, and swamped several native boats, which had to be hauled up on the Patent Slip to free them from the water.

AN Amoy correspondent, writing on 27th May, characterizes the Regatta which took place there on the Queen's Birthday as a very successful affair. The feat of extracting pigs from a box at the end of a greasy pole, sticking horizontally from a cargo boat over the water, was the cause of great fun and the result of no small amount of skill.

It is asserted that there is some reason to believe that the prisoner who is charged with the wilful murder of the woman at No. 12, Fat Hing Lane, Say-ying-poon, is insane. About 4 years ago he was sent away from the Colony on account of his mind being deranged; and after a short sojourn in his native place he appeared to have recovered. Very recently he jumped overboard from the Macao steamer and was rescued with some difficulty. He seems to be a very inoffensive and respectable man, but there is a shrinking look of fear on his face and an utter hopelessness of expression which may be either attributable to madness, or to a sense of the horror of his crime and the gravity of his situation.

We learn that the houses known as Ran-gel's lot, still standing in Hollywood Road, and now owned by the Government, are to be at once put in a habitable state for temporary occupation by the younger or proprietary classes of the Central School. If we were equally satisfied that greater teaching power were to be at once secured, the congratulations of the public might fairly be given to Mr. Hennessy for this concession. The vitiated air of the crowded rooms in the Central School during the heat of last week must have been something fit only for the Colonial Surgeon to use for chemical experiments. It is, however, satisfactory to know that the Government are doing something at last; while it is more gratifying still to be informed that the erection of the New Central School building will really be commenced at the conclusion of the present rainy season.

THERE were a few cases in the Summary Court to-day, but none of interest to the general public. A witness for the plaintiff in one suit gave his name as Wong Aping and subsequently as Chow Aping. When called upon
